De Viswif

INTRODUCTION

Owners Fred and Nadine welcome you to De Viswif Restaurant. This is Us...

Jeffreys Bay in the Eastern Cape, South Africa, is known for its world famous waves, friendly locals and relaxed atmosphere. It has been said that you should add De Viswif Restaurant to your must-visit list. Established in 1999, De Viswif Restaurant has earned a reputation as a restaurant where you can enjoy excellent food in an exquisite setting.

The setting you ask? We are very proud to say that we are the restaurant in front of the "Kitchen Windows" surf break. Ironic? I think not! We have an amazing kitchen that makes delicious food and with all of this, we have a breath taking view.

Here at De Viswif Restaurant, a family owned and operated establishment, we have a passion for food and believe that life is too short for bad food and wine. Customer satisfaction is our main concern. Our great menu offers not only fish but also steak, traditional dishes and many more, all perfectly matched with the extensive wine selection you'll find in this wine list, to match or pair to any meal.

We invite you to experience this for yourself and become part of the De Viswif Restaurant family, because here at De Viswif, we aim to serve...or is it surf?!

We take great care in the selection of our wines for the wine list. You will find popular and well known names on our wine list, and a wide choice of wines from several different wine producing districts (terroirs) in South Africa. The producers range from corporate conglomerates to exclusive estates and boutique wineries. Take time to select your choice of wine and be brave enough to try out a new cultivar or two.

CORKAGE POLICY

We are pleased to assist customers by opening and serving their personal wine. Our corkage fee, based on industry standards, is R75 per bottle.

WINE SELECTIONS

Furthermore we have added highlights of the winemakers tasting notes along with our “connoisseur” notes to provide you with as much information possible to help you make your selection.

It is a well-known fact that the ‘environmental factors’ soil, climate, and topography has a profound effect on the grapes producing wine. It should thus come as no surprise that most of our wines originate in the Western Cape – an area renowned for South Africa’s world-class wines.

Any great meal or a glass of an excellent wine on its own may well be a memorable experience but will be significantly more memorable when your meal and wine complement one another. Therefore we strongly suggest the below pairings.

LEGACY

At the end of the winter of 1764, Captain Jan van Dijkhorst sailed his newly built ship, De Viswijf, out of the harbour of Scheveningen in Holland.

His mission was to establish a settlement on the coast of Madagascar, to be used as a trading post on the sea route between Europe and the Far East. De Viswijf was last seen in October 1764 when it sailed around Cape Point after replenishment of goods in Cape Town.

No further information about the fate of the vessel or the seamen was available until the foundations of the new cell tower were dug on the main beach in Jeffreys Bay. The remnants of De Viswijf were discovered deep under the sand dunes and the mysterious disappearance of the ship has now been solved.

Memoirs found in an old chest indicated that the only survivor was the ship's cook. Rumour has it he has stayed in Jeffreys Bay for several years after the shipwreck and many of the current Jeffreys Bay inhabitants might be his descendants. The only memories that we have of him however, are his recipes...

CAP CLASSIQUE & BUBBLES

CAP CLASSIQUE. Suitable for any time of the day, there's always an excuse for a celebration! Champagne is derived from France where the original "Bubbly" came from, known as Cap Classique in SA. Delicious shortcake flavours with hints of fruitiness on the nose & a dry finish. Cap Classique may be made from three grape varieties: Chardonnay, Pinot Noir & Pinot Meunier. Cap Classique produced traditionally, undergoes a second fermentation, where sugar & yeast are added to the bottled wines, then resealed. Carbon dioxide is trapped inside the wine under pressure & is released as bubbles "mouse," when the Cap Classique is served. Both wines rely on the traditional French fermenting process, which is labour intensive, time consuming and entirely reliant on handpicking only the best grapes to ensure exceptional quality and optimal purity of fruit. This is what makes them so sought after and valuable. Cap Classique is South Africa's bubble equivalent to champagne.

Brut – Sparkling Wine that is dry or dryish in taste. Blanc de Blancs – White of Whites ; White "wine made from only white grapes." Demi-Sec – Fully Sweet. NV – Refers to Non Vintage SPARKLING WINE. You can spot the difference between the two if you look closely at their bubbles; a Cap Classique will have tiny bubbles with refined effervescence while Sparkling Wine has a larger, coarser fizz. Sparkling wine by comparison is created by a process which uses artificial carbonation on the production line resulting in a distinctly different drinking enjoyment.

PINOTAGE

Pinotage was bred by the late Professor A.I. Perold in 1925 by crossing Pinot Noir and Cinsaut, then locally known as Hermitage. Abraham Izak Perold (20 October 1880 - 11 December 1941) was a remarkable man. He obtained his PhD. in Chemistry (summa cum laude) in Germany during 1904 and was first appointed as a temporary professor in Chemistry at the University of Cape Town. The Cape Government sent him on an extended overseas tour to collect grape varieties that could be established locally. Perold is credited with the introduction of Barlinka, which he came across during a visit to Algeria. This variety became the backbone of South Africa's table grape production, earning millions in foreign exchange. Today Pinotage is South Africa's signature red grape. Rich in texture, full bodied and firm in structure with delicate dark berry fruitiness overlain with smokey, tarry and spicy complexity that is often shocking to the uninitiated. Some of these flavours appear in many South African reds but Pinotage is the most expressive.

Out of all the world's wine-producing nations, South Africa is unique in knowing the exact date on which its wine industry began, thanks to the entry on 2 February 1659 in the diary of Jan van Riebeeck, official of the Dutch East India Company and First Commander of the Cape: "Today, praise be to God, wine was made for the first time from Cape grapes." In one sense, then, the South African wine industry is very well established. In another, it could be said that it dates no further back than some 20 years, 11 February 1990 being the date that Nelson Mandela walked free from Victor Verster Prison in Paarl, a watershed moment in the political and social transformation of the country.

There are about 60 appellations within the Wine of Origin (WO) system, which was implemented in 1973 with a hierarchy of designated production regions, districts and wards. WO wines must be made 100% from grapes from the designated area. As far as international wine production is concerned, France leads with 17.3% of the total, Italy is second with 17.2%, Spain third with 13.0% and South Africa seventh with 3.5% (2010 figures). According to the latest available data (2011 provisional), South Africa is the eighth largest wine producer in the world, producing 9.665 million hectolitres a year, putting it behind Chile in seventh place with 10.463 million hectolitres and ahead of Germany in ninth place with 9.611 million hectolitres (France and Italy vie year on year for biggest global producer overall).

The Cape winelands are some of the most breathtakingly beautiful in the world. Several of the wine routes, including Constantia, Durbanville, Darling, Stellenbosch, Helderberg, Paarl, Franschhoek, Wellington and Walker Bay, are within an hour or less easy driving distance from Cape Town. Others, like Bredekloof, Worcester, Robertson, the Little Karoo, Tulbagh, the Swartland, Olifants River and the Northern Cape take you on a slightly longer journey through constantly changing and spectacular landscapes. Undeniably, South African wine has a higher alcohol content than French wine. Typical alcohol levels in French wine range from 10%-12% for white and 11-13% for red. South African wine starts at 12% and goes up to 16% for both red and white wine, averaging at around 14% for both. One has to keep in mind that the alcohol in wine results from the fermentation of sugar. The more sugar there is in the original grape juice, the higher the alcohol in the wine. The sugar in grapes increases dramatically as they ripen. In the cool climate of Europe, the grapes never reach the levels of ripeness that they do in the hot South African summer, so there is less sugar in the juice. In brief, hot summers produce riper grapes, which have more sugar, which essentially produces a higher level of alcohol. We would like to introduce to you our wine - please enjoy and discover the beauty of our wine, different wine styles, different cultivars from different terroir. Enjoy!

OTHER RED CULTIVARS & BLENDS

Be it Cape or Bordeaux blends, the combination of grape cultivars has been in existence for as long as man has been making wines. The best of each grape's features are accentuated and complexity is achieved. To enjoy with our meat dishes.

It's medium-bodied nature is enhanced by moderate, sleek tannins and a bright seam of acidity. The name illustrates that where passion is shared, it brings people together and illustrates that anything is possible and can overcome most things. This is also Pierre Puren and Pieter Vermaak, both from Jeffrey's Bay, with winemaker Angus Paul's first collaboration and the departure point of their new adventure together.

SHIPWRECK HISTORY

HMS Birckenhead

HMS Birckenhead was one of the first iron-hulled ships built for the Royal Navy. She was designed as a steam frigate. She was wrecked on 26 February 1852 while transporting troops to Algoa Bay at Danger Point near Gansbaai 140km from Cape Town, South Africa. There were not enough serviceable lifeboats for all the passengers and the soldiers famously stood firm on board, thereby allowing the women and children to board the boat safely and escape the sinking. Only 193 of the estimated 643 people on board survived. The soldiers chivalry gave rise to unofficial "women and children first" protocol.

Thomas T Tucker

The SS Thomas Tucker was a Liberty ship built for service as a troop and weapons carrier. She was named after Thomas Tudor Tucker, an American physician and politician from South Carolina. She ran aground off Olifantsbos Point, near Cape Point on November 27 1942 during heavy fog. Assuming they were close to Robben Island and therefore not far from Cape Town the crew relaxed and the ship ran aground. After an investigation it was discovered the ships compass was out by 37 The wreck is located on a stretch of rocks on the shoreline of Olifantsbos Beach, within The Cape of Good Hope.

Soa Joao

In 1552 the Portuguese ship Sao Joao ran aground near modern day Port Edward. It was the first cargo ship to wreck on the coastline of South Africa. It was traveling from India back to Portugal, carrying a cargo of pepper, porcelain, beads, tapestries and other items reportedly "worth a million in gold". Of the approximately 600 souls aboard, some 100 lost their lives during the wrecking. Only 21 of the survivors eventually reached Mozambique after embarking on a journey north along the coastline in hope of being rescued by passing ships. The wreck was only found in the 1980s by Tim Maggs. Porcelain shards believed to be from the wreckage of the Sao Joao still wash up on the beaches near Port Edward.

SS Waratah

The SS Waratah was a 150m long cargo liner steamship that operated between Europe and Australia in the early 1900's. In July 1909, the ship en route from Durban to Cape Town disappeared with 211 passengers and crew aboard. To this day, no trace of the ship has been found. It was named Waratah after the emblem flower of New South Wales Australia, which appears to have been an unlucky name as 3 ships with that name have been lost. The ship was designed to serve as a passenger and cargo liner to Australia, it had 100 first class cabins, 8 state rooms and a salon whose panels depicted its namesake flower and a luxurious music lounge with a minstrel's gallery.

Meisho Maru

The Meisho Maru No 38 was a small Japanese fishing vessel that ran aground in the stormy waters around L'Agulhas on 16 November 1982. The accident occurred close to shore and the crew of 17 all managed to swim to safety. After surviving seas which at times can produce swells of up to 30 meters, the ship finally broke apart a few years ago. The prow can still be seen, but the ocean will eventually claim even that.
